

JAPS BELIEVE WAR IS OVER

Think That a Few More Defeats for the Russians Will End the Contest.

ARE STILL RETREATING EACH DAY

The Japs Win a Pitch Battle After Battle, Driving the Russian Generals Farther From Port Arthur.

(Special by Scripps-Mellae.)

St. Petersburg, Aug. 3.—Gen. Kuropatkin reports the Russian troops have retired from Hai Chang along the road to An Shan Chan. The retreat was perfect in order despite the heat which caused many sun-strokes. He adds no serious news has been received from the eastern frontier.

At Rome
Rome, Aug. 3.—The Giornale d'Italia prints in an extra edition a dispatch from Tokio, stating the Japanese armored Kasuga, formerly the Argentine warship Rivadavia, has been sunk.

Many Killed
Tokio, Aug. 3.—Gen. Kuroki reports the Japanese losses in two fights at Yang Tsung and Kish Litung were six officers killed and sixteen wounded, and 550 men killed and wounded.

Many Dead Russians
Tokio, Aug. 3.—A dispatch from the front states in the battle of Semuhong which place the Japanese captured on Sunday, the Russians left fifteen hundred dead on the field. The Japanese casualties were four hundred killed and wounded. Six Russian guns were captured.

Army Starving
Rome, Aug. 3.—A Liao Yang correspondent of Telemora Italia asserts the condition among the Russians at the front is disastrous. The army is dying of hunger. After forty-eight hours' march they had nothing but a piece of sugar. They have no meat, bread or provisions. The provisions arrive at long intervals only.

Entirely Routed
Tokio, Aug. 3.—Kuroki has routed Kuropatkin's main army in a battle twenty miles from Liao Yang, capturing many guns. The casualties were enormous.

A general engagement of the main Russian army under Kuropatkin was made unavoidable by the victories of the three Japanese armies under Kuroki, at Yang Pass, Yushikoku and Simouhng. With the conjunction of these three victorious armies, which have formed the cordon which has been drawn around Kuropatkin's army and which the Russians were amazed at learning on the eve of this decisive battle comprise over 300,000 men with from 200 to 400 guns. It is more than possible that the Japanese were in a position to deal such a fearful blow as this dispatch states has fallen on the Russian forces.

The Results
London, Aug. 3.—Total annihilation or surrender the alternative for Gen. Stachelberg's army of 20,000 men, a general engagement with three armies immensely superior in point of both men and guns forced upon Kuropatkin's main force, with defeat meaning the crushing of Russia's whole Manchurian campaign—these are the chief results of two defeats inflicted upon the Russians by the Japanese armies after two days of steady fighting at and near Hailheng.

Army Completely Isolated
Stachelberg's army is completely isolated from the main force as a result of the brilliant maneuvers successfully carried through dint of hard fighting and at heavy cost by a great force of Japanese under General Nodzu, and in which General Oku's army cooperated. While the forces under the latter's command held the Russian army at Hailheng in check, General Nodzu worked around the vital position at Simouhng and breaking through the army with the main Russian position at Hailheng, succeeded in cutting it off completely.

Confirms the Victories
The announcement from Tokio that General Kuroki, after two days' fighting, defeated the Russians in two separate engagements, is enforced by a report from the correspondent of the Times who is with Kuroki's army. He says:
"This army began a general attack at daylight today (July 31) which lasted until sunset. The Japanese center took Tso Wan, capturing the enemy's northwestern position."
"The left advanced and occupied the position, jeopardizing the Russian right. The Japanese carried a position against superior numbers. There was tremendous artillery firing throughout the day and the infantry finished with a brilliant march under the enemy's shrapnel."
"I believe the Russian position will be untenable tomorrow."

Main Position Imperiled
Nothing can now save Kuropatkin from a general engagement. His army, before the successful operations of Monday, formed a wedge, with General Oku hammering away at the point and with Nodzu and Kuroki operating with driving movements of great force against the sides. It is through Nodzu's breaking through that the doom of the southern force under Stachelberg, which formed the point of the wedge at Simouhng, is apparently sealed.

The capture of Simouhng brings the two southern divisions of the Japanese army into communication and enables them to move together on Kuropatkin at Hailheng.

Fall Back to Mukden
It is asserted by some that for several days the main body of the Russian army has been moving northward toward Mukden and that now the present line to the southeast is forced the Japanese have crushed only the shell. Should this prove to be so, General Kuropatkin will doubtless be obliged to destroy the immense quantity of stores accumulated at Liao Yang.

The Russian general staff is amazed at the immense strength of the three co-operating Japanese armies. The Japanese evidently have succeeded in concealing the real number of their men and guns, which the general staff now believes must be an excess of 300,000 men, with between 300 and 400 guns.

Report Capture
New Chung, Aug. 3.—Chinese bring rumors that Hai Chang has been captured by the combined Japanese armies and although the report is entirely without confirmation, it is generally credited by the Japanese army officers now here.

Is Exhaustive
London, Aug. 3.—The London Times in an exhaustive editorial this morning discusses the report of the commandant of the Russian Siberian squadron relative to the operations off the coast of Japan, and declares that the sinking of the Knight Commander and the German steamer by it constituted piracy according to the laws of nations. The Times then sounds a warning against further acts of this character, claiming that the time is near when Great Britain will be compelled to take radical steps to prevent interference with her commerce. In conclusion, the Times says:

"Admiral Skrydloff's report of the achievements of his squadron during the late cruise, which may be repeated or imitated elsewhere, shows that we are not at the end of our difficulty with Russia growing out of her interference with neutral trade. Her action in sinking a German steamer because it was laden with fish may be entirely in accordance with the Russian prize code, as the Russian newspapers contend, but such procedure is not in accordance, either with our prize law, as we have practiced it when our mastery of the seas was indisputable, or with any legal or equitable principles to which we are likely to assent."

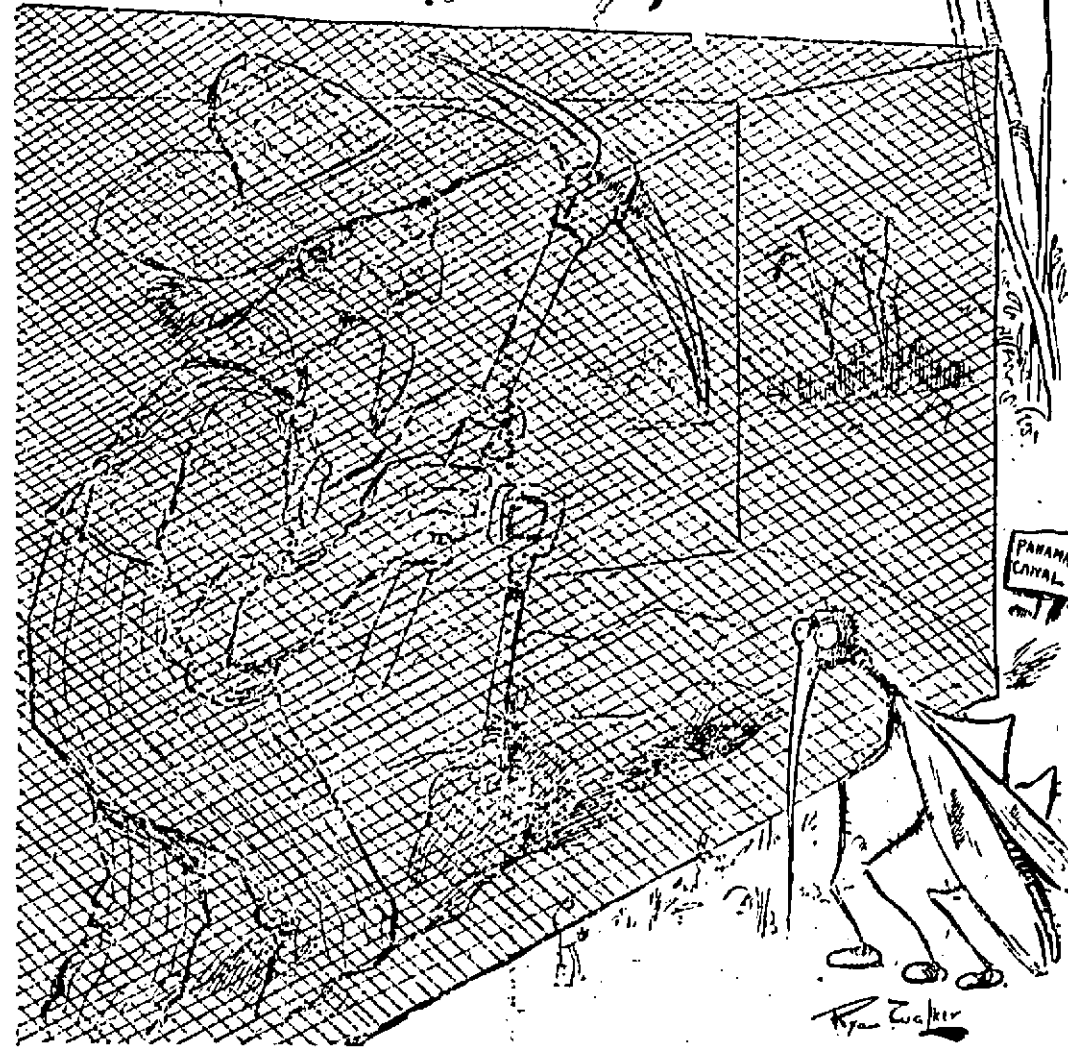

England Has Warned Russia
"Germans may think as they please but we know from the lips of two prime ministers of England that Great Britain has already warned Russia as she did France during the war with China that we cannot recognize provisions as contraband of war. The Knight Commander is alleged to have carried railway material, and not to have stopped when ordered to do so, but these points are yet to be established to the satisfaction of the British government. Then and not until then shall we determine whether we will assent to the Russian doctrine that railway materials are contraband. Even on Admiral Skrydloff's own showing he had absolutely no justification outside of the municipal law of Russia for sinking vessels of other nations, and Russian municipal laws are decidedly different from the law of nations."

More Troops
St. Petersburg, Aug. 3.—The government is arranging for the mobilization of a new army corps to be dispatched to the far east.

Write Russians to Retreat
Their artillery opened on the enemy and the infantry moved forward from Makumze. The attack on this place was made at 1 o'clock on Sunday, and by nightfall the Japanese were in possession of a majority of the Russian positions, although the enemy had resisted with determination. The Japanese forces passed the night in the battle formation and another assault was made on Monday at dawn. By 8 o'clock Monday morning Yangse pass and the surrounding heights had been captured.

Country a Difficult One
Gen. Kuroki explains the slowness of these attacks by saying that the difficult topography of the battlefields made it impossible to secure good artillery positions, and that the great heat fatigued his troops.

The Russian force at Yangse pass was estimated at two and one-half divisions and four batteries of artillery. The enemy retreated toward Tang-hoven.

WIFE OF GEN. MILES
IS DEAD AT WEST POINT

Attack of Heart Disease While Visiting Her Son at Military Academy Is Cause of Demise.

West Point, N. Y., Aug. 3.—Mrs. Nelson A. Miles, wife of the retired lieutenant general of the army, died in this city Monday night of heart disease. She had been ill at intervals during the last year from the same affliction, but for several days had been more than usually well. She and the general came here to visit their son Sherman, who is a cadet at the military academy. The general was out of the city at the time of his wife's death. With her at the time were her son Sherman, her son-in-law, Col. Samuel Reber, U. S. A., and her two nieces from Washington, Miss Fitch and Miss Hoyt.

Mrs. Nelson A. Miles was 62 years of age and was a daughter of Judge Charles Sherman of Ohio and niece of the late Senator John Sherman and Gen. W. T. Sherman. She was a sister to the wife of former Senator Don Cameron of Pennsylvania. Mrs. Miles was for many years the leader of the army set in the national capital, and was very popular in society. She was married to General Miles in 1858.

MAKES DISCOVERIES
CONCERNING THE MOON

Drawings of Lunar Crater Upset Theories in Regard to Formation of Surface.

San Francisco, Aug. 3.—Prof. William M. Pickering of Harvard, who is spending some time on Mount Lowe, near Pasadena, has made some new discoveries concerning the moon. Eight drawings of the interior and floor of the lunar crater Eratosthenes have been made on successive nights. No two are alike. The most marked difference appeared on Monday night, July 18, to Tuesday night, the 19th. The change in area of shining is pronounced. Prof. Pickering's theory is that these variations in size and in color are more likely to be caused by vegetation than by any other possible cause. Areas also appear of brilliant white at times where browns and grays appeared before. These the professor attributed to hoar frost. These have been supposed to be white rock, now in shadow and now in bright light, caused by varying angles and altitudes of the sun. But Prof. Pickering has dozens of drawings and photographs that cannot be explained by this or any other apparent theory.

Little Violence Is Reported—Many Minor Cases Attract the Attention of the Police This Morning.

(Special by Scripps-Mellae.)

Chicago, Aug. 3.—With the yards glutted with stock which they cannot handle, the packers are facing a serious situation. Twenty-nine thousand hogs were left over from yesterday. Four hundred and seventy-five carloads of stock arrived this morning. The strikers claim that much "stale" stock is on hand and that the packers are sustaining big losses through the inability of unskilled labor to get out the by products and take care of the stock received. A hundred strike-breakers arrived this morning. A thousand more are reported on the way. Few minor cases of violence were reported this morning.

CONVICT LABOR CASE HEARING

Judge Humphrey May Abolish Injunction Against the New Law.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 3.—Judge J. Otis Humphrey of the United States circuit court heard arguments on the motion to dissolve the injunction against the new convict labor law passed by the last general assembly. At the close of the hearing the court stated that it would pass upon the motion within a short time. Those who heard the argument and followed the inquiries made by the court while the argument was in progress incline to the belief that the temporary injunction will be dissolved and that the law will be permitted to go into effect. It was evident that the court had serious doubts as to whether some of the allegations of the bill at least were sufficient to warrant the granting of a permanent injunction.

TELL FAIRBANKS OF HIS NOMINATION

Republican Nominee for Vice President Is Officially Notified He Is a Candidate.

Indianapolis, Aug. 3.—In the midst of the hurrahs from the democrats assembled for the state convention today a party of national republican politicians met quietly at the English hotel at noon and proceeded to the home of Fairbanks on North Meridian street, where ex-Secretary Root delivered the notification speech and the republican vice-presidential nominee followed with a brief acceptance. The speeches were delivered from the veranda, and when concluded two hundred guests partook of luncheon in a large tent on the lawn. The committee left on late afternoon trains.

Fairbanks said he accepted the commission with a profound sense of the dignity and responsibility of the exalted position and then plunked into a review of the parties since the beginning of the gold standard. The monetary economic policies so forcibly reaffirmed he said he at the foundation of our industrial life. The republican party since it has preserved the integrity of the republic has never rendered a more important service than when it established the gold standard. The enemies of sound money were powerful enough to suppress the mention of the gold standard in the platform of that lately adopted by the democratic convention, and the democratic leaders of two campaigns declared that after the present campaign was finished they will undertake the re-organization of the party for the purpose of advancing the radical principles for which this element of the party stands. Therefore, it is not a part of wisdom of the protective tariff policy it finds to complete the justification in the industrial development of the country. When altered conditions make the changes necessary they can be safely extricated to the republican party. The convention was wise not only in its cancellation of party policies, but in its nomination of the candidate for president. The charges made against him in the democratic platform find an irrefutable answer in his splendid administration never surpassed in the history of any republic and never equalled by the party which seeks to discredit it.

BOOMERANG MAY HIT THE SENDER

STATE TREASURER KEMPF MAY BE FORCED TO RESIGN.

ADMINISTRATION CAMP HURT

Too Many Scandals Have Been Evolved in the Camp of the So Called Reformers.

Madison, Wis.—A situation most distressing to Governor La Follette and his third term and railroad-baiting aspirations has arisen in the announcement of the La Follette republican state central committee of the letter of State Treasurer John J. Kempf withdrawing as the candidate for treasurer. Mr. Kempf now repudiates the letter, although he admits he wrote it. He declares the committee bulldozed him into writing it and he will not "stand for it."

Current Reports
In this situation, it is currently stated at the capitol, Governor La Follette will utterly disavow Mr. Kempf Saturday by formally declaring the office of state treasurer vacated by the possible failure of the treasurer to secure the additional $350,000 surety bonds demanded by the governor. Of course this action by the executive can be taken only in the event that Mr. Kempf fails in his negotiations with the bonding company.

Administration Active
There seems to be a wish on the part of the administration that the bond will not be secured by Mr. Kempf and it is known that great difficulties have been encountered in the negotiations. Mr. Kempf is now fighting back against the governor, claims, which is probably true, that the alleged shortage of $3,400 was the result of more errors in bookkeeping, but that it was immediately made good, but that the sensation was given out by La Follette people with the plan of forcing Mr. Kempf off the state ticket, out of office and to bring great personal injury.

A Merry War
While this war is in progress in the administration camp the republicans who were declared regular by the Chicago national convention, are complacently looking on, taking unbecomingly pleasure in the humiliation and assured defeat of La Follette. The democrats of the state are all the more confident of carrying the state in November.

John H. Young
John H. Young, registration clerk in the office of secretary of state, was greatly surprised yesterday morning when he entered the office and was informed by Secretary Housner that his services were no longer required. The reasons for the discharge are attributed to the statements said to have been made by Mr. Young, showing that he was actively engaged in fighting the measures advocated by the La Folletteites. He was a member of the assembly in 1901 and at that time strenuously opposed the primary election law proposed by La Follette. He was one of the original signers of the eleventh floor propaganda but later changed his policy and declared himself in favor of the administration. He took this step because he was in sore need of work and was given the position of registration clerk. He evidently made a mistake in trying to "stand in" with both factions of the republican party.

NEW BARLEY FAIR. BUT OFF COLOR

Claims Made It Has Been Threshed Too Early—Otherwise in Excellent Shape.

Barley, the dealers claim, will be a little off color in many cases owing to the fact that it was threshed a little before it should have been. The season's yield as a whole, however, will be most excellent. Rye will be the banner crop of the state and the quality of the deliveries in the Milwaukee market thus far are choice. The average is large and the threshing is now going on all over the state.

CORN MAKING A GOOD PROGRESS

National Government Report Shows That Great Gains Have Been Made in Last Few Weeks.

The weekly crop report of the weather bureau says: "Corn has experienced a week of favorable temperature, while needling rain in portions of the Ohio and central Mississippi valleys, the crop, as a whole, has made good progress and continues in promising condition. Threshing wheat has advanced under favorable weather conditions in the central valleys, but frequent rains have interrupted this work in the middle Atlantic states. The quality and yield of grain are proving disappointing in the lower Mississippi valley."

"Unfavorable reports respecting spring wheat are now pronounced as well as more general than in the previous week, rust being more or less prevalent in all of the principal spring wheat states east of the Rocky mountains."

"Oats harvest is in general progress. Rust has caused damage in North Dakota and Minnesota and rains have proved injurious in Maryland, Delaware and New Jersey."

"Cotton has made good growth in the central and eastern portions of the cotton belt, too rapid growth being reported from portions of Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana. Complaints of rust and shedding are more general in the previous week in the Carolinas, Georgia and Florida. Shedding is also generally reported from Texas, Mississippi and Louisiana. The crop in Mississippi and Louisiana is grassy. Pickling continues in southern Texas and has begun in Alabama and Florida."

"The condition of tobacco is less favorable in the Ohio valley, but from Virginia northward, tobacco has made good growth, and topping is in progress. Curing is progressing in the Carolinas, the crop in North Carolina being much lighter than usual."

"Rains have damaged hay in the middle Atlantic states, but elsewhere a large crop of generally fine quality has been secured."

"Plowing for fall seeding has commenced in the middle Atlantic states, southern Illinois and Oklahoma."

RUST APPEARS IN CROPS THIS YEAR

Grain Fields of Wisconsin Show Effects of the Dreaded Fungus This Summer.

Rust has appeared in Wisconsin oat and wheat fields, according to reports which are coming to local commission men, as well as from the evidence obtained by State Grain Inspector Frank Hinckley in examining samples of grain submitted to him.

"What promised to be a bumper crop will undoubtedly be cut down to a good average yield by rust," said Mr. Hinckley yesterday. "Two weeks ago the indications were for a crop in these grains which would be far beyond the average. Rust does not appear until late, so that those last two weeks before threshing are critical. This season is one particularly favorable to its appearance, as the crops are full two weeks later than usual, owing to the backward spring. It has been noticed that earlier varieties of grain frequently escape its ravages."

Hinckley Describes Rust
"Rust is a fungus growth which attacks first the leaf, then the stem, and lastly the grain itself. No one can tell when or why it is going to appear. It comes up as sporadically as the mushroom, and seems to be disseminated in the same way. Experiment stations have made less progress in fighting it and learning its nature than they have in any other one instance. Early planting and early ripening varieties seem to be the best means of avoiding it, and the stations are now attempting to produce seed which will have the early ripening quality and be equal to the later varieties in other ways."

"Its appearance seems to be general at this time. Papers and letters I have received indicate that it is making losses for the grain raiser in Iowa and South Dakota, as well as in Wisconsin. So far, more damage has been done to the oat crop than to the wheat yield, as the former is farther along and for that reason easier to estimate. It is impossible to tell how much damage has been done until the grain is threshed out."

SMALL BOYS ARE ON THE QUI VIVE

CIRCUS DAY COMES TOMORROW TRAINS ARRIVE EARLY.

HOW GREAT SHOW IS MOVED

Tent Poles as Big as Masts of Ocean Steamers—Hard Work on Seats.

The sense of exhilaration that sweeps over the community at this announcement is not confined to the small boy nor the small boy's big brother.

It is a popular and legitimate thing for father families to "hem" and "haw" a little when asked if he is going to the circus, and finally admits in a half depreciating way, that "he will probably have to go and see the animals." But, way down in his heart, unless that useful member is warped and calloused beyond all hope of recovery, there is a sense of jubilation—a surging of old feelings and old memories—a perfect flood of recollections in which the one-ring circus of other days, and Dan Rice and "Jim" Robinson, the "champion rider of the universe," and a long list of other famous ring celebrities, are photographed upon his mind in a composite picture of other days. He may possibly say that of the strenuous days when there is so much to see that the spectator is constantly threatened with strabismus and mental aberration, is not to be compared with the old-time circus, with a single clown, one elephant and a lonesome family of acrobats; but, nevertheless, he in his heart knows he is a good natured hypocrite and that he would "take in" the circus if there wasn't a boy "this side of the North Pole."

And so, when the five long trains of cars, used to transport Barnum & Bailey's Greatest Show on Earth, come rolling into the city, one after another, the curious army of greeting will not be confined to the small boy. Not much! Father will be there, and the mother and the small boy's big brother and big sister, with a few uncles and aunts, and a large contingent of the small boy's neighbors. Why? Well, that's something no one can explain. It is the fascination that is part and parcel of the circus, and that is all that can be said about it.

The show will pitch its tents on Eastern Ave. As fast as the cars are unloaded in the Northwestern yards, the vans and wagons will be transferred to the exhibition grounds, and the work of erecting the tents put in operation. This is one of the most interesting features incident to the arrival of the big shows, and always furnishes the crowd a good deal to see and marvel at. With the Barnum & Bailey circus this is true to an unusual extent, for the reason that the tents are the largest that have ever been constructed and require the heaviest poles ever utilized in a traveling exhibition. The center poles, particularly, are as heavy as any three poles used by ordinary circuses, while their length is equal to the tallest mast of an ocean-going sailing ship. Notwithstanding the great amount of canvas and the immense height of the poles, the tents will go up with almost incredible swiftness, and within two hours after the arrival of the first wagon on the show grounds, the erstwhile barren field will be transformed into a veritable city of canvas, with all the life, bustle and gaiety of a great fair. The people who go to the show grounds to see these unwieldy structures will need a dozen pairs of eyes. Everything is novel and interesting to the untutored, the housing of the hundreds of sleek, well-groomed horses; the erection of the menagerie tent to protect rare and curious animals from possible inclement weather, and, incidentally, the eyes of the crowd; the work of the elephants, which are used to push the great vans and wagons into place; the commissary department, with its great ranges on wheels, and its dining tents with places for over a thousand "guests" at a single sitting; the dressing tents where the performers are inspecting their wardrobe and preparing for the exhibition; the mammoth hippodrome pavilion, with its wonderful seat platform and grand stand opera chairs and the long rows of boxes, and triple rings and stages, the forest of aerial rigging for the performance of the "flying meteors." Every way the visitor turns there will be something new to see and something novel and unexpected to talk about.

Everything will be in readiness for the street parade which is to inaugurate the engagement. This parade, which is described as brilliant beyond all precedent this year, will leave the exhibition grounds at 9 o'clock and pass over the usual route. The initial performance will take place at 2 o'clock and the final one at 8 p. m. A great circus company has been gathered from all parts of the world. The performance is preceded by a beautiful spectacle entitled "The Durbar at Delhi." Then come the circus numbers, including the great sensational acts of Volo, the Voltant, who "cycles the aerial arch," and Anelliotti, who turns a complete somersault on a wheel while "looping the gap." Owing to the immense amount of paraphernalia to be handled these sensational acts will be given in the early part of the program at the night show.

The Wheat Crop.—Rev. G. W. Lawrence brought into our office yesterday some twenty specimens of wheat, collected by him from as many different fields, while passing over twenty-five or thirty miles of country. The samples graded from first rate to very poor, although three-quarters of them were very good. Fields that will yield only eight or ten bushels per acre, furnish an excellent berry. Some specimens were as nice and plump as in the best seasons. Mr. Lawrence is of the opinion that Rock county will harvest at least half the crop of wheat.

Religious.—There will be services in Christ church tomorrow morning at half past ten o'clock, and also a union service of the Baptist, Methodist, Congregational and Presbyterian churches, at the Presbyterian church.

A SATISFACTORY SILO.

Cheap to Build, a Permanent Structure and Gives Perfect Silage.

We have at one end of our barn an octagonal silo built in 1893 that gives us perfect silage. It is cheap to build, a permanent structure and has not cost one cent for repairs, writes a correspondent to Rural New Yorker. Fig. A in the cut illustrates the way the framework is set, made of 2 by 4 inch studs cut whatever length is wished, depending on the size of the silo you wish to build. Our studs are eight feet long, lap across ends and are spiked. These frames are set at different widths, being nearest together near the bottom of the silo, where the greatest strain comes. The first two are fifteen and eighteen inches apart, the next two feet, and from this up to three and one-half feet near the top. The whole framework for this silo can be carried in a one horse wagon, while our rectangular silo, having the same capacity, requires several two horse loads of heavy timber and yet it bulges at the sides. This one stays tight, as the pressure is practically equal all around the silo. There are no corners to speak of in this one and no spoiled silage.

We dug a ditch about eighteen inches wide and two feet deep around where the framework was to set; this we filled with small stones and cemented. The center was on hard pan leveled up with small stones and cemented, and after silo was made run up a little on the side of the silo so runs could not get under the bottom. Hats and mice, if possible, will burrow under a silo and let air in and spoil considerable silage. On this foundation we set our first framework and succeeding ones at various widths, as before stated, each section held up by a piece of 2 by 4 under the end of each piece, so that for each section eight horse pieces are required besides the 2 by 4 pieces. On the inside of this frame is one thickness of matched lumber running up and down, and the only care is to get each board tight at the ends of the framework section. One thickness is better than two, or two with a gap between, as it will dry out quicker and last longer.

The outside may be covered or not, as desired. We covered ours with matched lumber for looks largely, although it makes a dead air space, so that, though ours faces northwest and the mercury goes almost out of sight sometimes, we are not bothered with frozen silage. We have two doors on one side for filling, and four doors open into the barn for feeding. These are simply traps between sections of the framework and are held in place by the silage.

A roof can be built or not, as desired. We like one to keep out snow, etc., but it is not necessary. An eight point roof can be made or a single pitch roof. We have two rods running around the silo, and these by use of the truss shown cover the lower six sections and are ample for the purpose. The truss is of two inch plank cut out as in the cut and placed in center of section at points marked on the framework, so that the rod strikes the eight outside corners and the width cut in the truss.

Sanitation in the Hog Lot.

There are a few fundamental facts to be remembered in order to avoid losses by reason of the presence of hog cholera or swine plague in the herd. The first is that these are specific germ diseases, disseminated by bacteria, and the contagion cannot be spread from one animal to another or from one herd to another except by these minute organisms. They may be carried in a multitude of ways—by the hogs themselves, on the clothing of persons, on vehicles, in feed, by dogs, birds and other animals or by streams. The breeding or feed of a hog cannot cause either disease, although bad methods may so weaken the constitution and vitality that the animal becomes more susceptible than would otherwise be the case. Second, diseases caused by bacteria may be prevented in large part by thorough disinfection. Third, bacteria are generally preserved in filth, and therefore scrupulous cleanliness will go far toward preventing outbreaks of disease in herds of hogs.

News and Notes.

Imports of cheese into the United States now exceed the exports.

Dried blood has been found very satisfactory by C. W. Burkett of North Carolina in feeding horses when the animals are run down and thin in flesh.

Macaroni, vermicelli and all similar preparations constitute, as a whole, the most important item of breadstuffs imported for consumption into the United States.

Successful results with ginseng in Iowa are claimed from planting among evergreens and in walnut groves.

Cement is coming into greater use each year, and many new purposes for which it is excellent are being found.

It is claimed that flies may abstract as much as a pint of blood from an animal in a day.

VERDICT OF THE PARTY

From the report of the committee on Credentials to the REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION, which was unanimously adopted by that convention, June 22, 1904.

Your committee report it to be their final judgment that the convention which elected John C. Spooner, J. V. Charles, J. W. Babcock and Emil Baensch as delegates at large, and their alternates at large, to this convention from the state of Wisconsin WAS THE REGULAR CONVENTION OF THE REPUBLICAN PARTY IN WISCONSIN, and that the delegates elected by it are the regular elected delegates at large from the state of Wisconsin to the republican convention, and, as such, are entitled to seats in this convention.

ONE OF MANY.

Oscar Straus, a life long democrat one of Mr. Cleveland's strongest supporters and a leader in the democratic bolt from Bryan in the first McKinley campaign, refuses to support Judge Parker and the democratic ticket.

He says that the refusal of the Democratic Convention at St. Louis to incorporate a sound money plank in its platform after the receipt of Judge Parker's letter was a Bryan victory. A party that has not the courage or the wisdom to take such a necessary action in regard to sound money does not, he asserts, deserve to be entrusted with power, and therefore he refuses to support its candidates. In accordance with these views Mr. Straus on Monday sent the following letter to President Roosevelt:

"My Dear Mr. President: Though I have always been a liberal democrat, latterly a Cleveland democrat, my admiration for your fearless devotion to right in its highest sense and my esteem for your wisdom and courageous executive conservatism make it a privilege no less than a duty to dedicate my best services to your election.

"Faithfully yours,
"OSCAR STRAUS.
"New York, July 18, 1904."

At his residence, No. 5 West Seventy-sixth street, last night, Mr. Straus said he had not yet received any answer to his communication. He had arrived at his conclusions in no hasty manner, but from careful consideration of all the circumstances of the political situation.

"A party which cannot unite or has not the wisdom or the courage to unite," said Mr. Straus, "to put a sound money plank in its platform, is not sufficiently reconstructed to be entrusted with power.

"While Judge Parker's telegram is highly creditable to him in the light of all the circumstances, I cannot but regard it as highly discreditable to his party, which, even after its receipt, refused to incorporate sound money in its platform, thus conceding to Bryan the victory he claims, and is justified in claiming, to have won.

"President Roosevelt's action in the anthracite coal strike and in his re-instating Miller in the government printing office, shows him to be a man whose sense of right, under the most trying circumstances, could not be influenced or clouded by any considerations of expediency however powerful they might be.

"He has shown by these and other executive acts, while he is the friend equally of capital and labor he will not permit himself to be dictated or influenced by either to the prejudice of the rights of all the people.

OUT ON BOTH THEIR HOUSES.

War has been declared; not between England and Russia—with that possibility we are not now dealing—but between the beef packers and their employees. The "seats" of these wars are at Chicago and Fall River. The questions at issue pertain to wages, which in the aggregate amount to a comparatively small sum of money—only 21,000 a week divides the cotton spinners and their striking workmen.

As to the merits of these controversies we have now nothing to say. That between the cotton spinners and their men is of less importance than the other, because the world can get along very well, at least for a time, with cotton goods, but meat is a necessity of life. But both strikes have the inevitable result of increasing the cost of living. By shutting off the supplies, they advance the price not merely of meat and cotton goods, but of all other related articles, for if men cannot get meat they will eat more bread and vegetables and the increased demand for these goods advances their prices.

So the consumer in the long run has to pay the cost of these labor wars. The country suffers; in a measure, the whole world suffers, because organized labor and organized capital cannot agree as to the division of the profits of business.

This is what always happens when these two classes clash; innocent people suffer. It is, therefore, fair to inquire where the rights of the people come in. Is it their duty to remain silent and accept uncomplainingly the cost of the conflict, while organized selfishness fights out the issue, which is the stronger? What do they gain, whether one side wins or the other? Apparently organized capital and organized labor make no account of that. They see only their own interest at stake, and care very little about the public interest.

What makes the situation worse is that in most of these disputes between capital and labor, what each side is fighting for is a monopoly. In the two strikes now before us, the immediate issue is indeed that of wages, but beyond that is the question of monopoly. Suppose the packers win the strike. Will not their monopoly of the trade in meat be strengthened by their victory over the only organization which now stands in the way of their complete mastery of the situation? Suppose the men win? Granted that their pay is too small, what will be the effect of their victory? Only to make them more aggressive. They will insist upon the closed shop, upon the monopoly of labor.

We confess that our sympathies are with the public who has to pay the piper by which these contending class organizations may dance. As long as organized capital aims at monopoly and organized labor aims at monopoly we are constrained to exclaim Mercurio, "Out upon both their houses!" When both conduct themselves with fairness and justice towards each other and towards the public, we would welcome both with open arms, as efficient servants of prosperity. These remarks, we are aware apply with more force to the meat strike than to the cotton strike, but the basic principle in most of these disputes between capital and labor is the same. They ignore the rights of the outside public. But sooner or later the outside public will make itself felt.

Fifty years ago the republican party was formed in this state. Just a half century later the republican party still lives, growing stronger every moment and after the supreme court decision will be stronger than ever.

If this strike keeps up long enough Chicago people will be a brainy race. That is if they eat fish. Scientists say fish food makes brains. Perhaps if this is so some people should contract for a small-sized whale.

The Free Press keeps up its talk on the orderly manner in which the gymnasium convention was conducted. Did the Free Press expect the five hundred and sixty-seven delegates to be anything but gentlemen?

When a man gets all he can out of one party in the way of political office and then turns to the other political side of the fence for a like contribution, he is not a mugwump but a human hog.

Oshkosh means to make the democratic state convention a regular picnic. Well, it will be the only fun the democrats can have this fall, so let them enjoy themselves.

Russia seems to be able to hold her own in the retreating line with Japan and Japan cannot seem to run after Russia as fast as Russia can run away.

Summer resorts are a little shy this year in the line of sea serpents. Lakh Geneva has not yet had its usual weird tale of the man, the bottle and the snake.

Mr. Bryan visited at Beloit. Blew off a little steam about his dear friends in the state. Went to Delavan Lake Assembly, gathered in the shelves and went home.

Day by day old time democrats step off the democratic hand wagon and follow in the procession that trails after the republican music of prosperity.

Wall street has about decided that it had better leave well enough alone and not meddle with the administration for at least four years more at least.

Wait till the democratic spell-blinder cuts loose and tells us how the country is going to the bow wows immediately.

Mr. Taggart had better hold onto his hold in Indiana and leave Wisconsin alone, he will only waste his time.

Wait until Chairman Cortelyou gets to work and actually fires the first gun in the coming campaign.

"It sorter looks as though Panama might be asking as little too much from Enkle Sam all to once."

Milwaukee has just finished a touch of good old Germany. It has also survived and has Dave Rose left.

Each day is becoming shorter than yesterday and tomorrow will be shorter than today.

Bold highwaymen now days stop loaded trains of picknickers and take all they have.

Wisconsin is solid for Roosevelt, no matter what internal discussion may exist.

Why not have an ideal climate just the same as an ideal community?

Chicago people have decided that their diet had better be fish anyway.

Roosevelt will not allow anyone to work harder than he is himself.

Banks compute interest including Sundays and holidays.

Kipling has broken into verse again. Poor Kipling.

PRESS COMMENT

Milwaukee Sentinel: Now that he has begun making exposures on his own hook, Gov. La Follette might as well publish a complete list of the men connected with his administration who have gone wrong.

Chicago Inter Ocean: Sudden departure for Europe of a number of wealthy democrats may mean nothing in particular, but it will be viewed with more or less alarm by Mr. Taggart of Indiana.

Madison Journal: The fact that Theodore Thomas does not look on Milwaukee as away up in musical circles may result in a coolness between Tommy and the average burgher.

Exchange: A lock of Bryan's hair has been sold for $65. There are democrats who would give a good many times that sum for what hair David B. Hill has left, with the scalp attached.

Shawano Journal: When the La Follette faction announces that it will not be bound by the decision of the courts a release from the usual rules is given every voter in the other faction. The rule that is our La Follette is fair to Cook.

Racine Journal: It costs to violate the game law in Minnesota for the two hunters who were found with 2,000 ducks in their possession were fined $20,000 and the fine has been sustained by the supreme court.

Green Bay, Gazette: The United States appears to be in a most critical and dangerous position. The Colombian congress has just met and decided to suspend diplomatic relations with this country.

Tomah Monitor-Herald: The democratic platform calls for a tariff revision that will cut down the profits of manufacturers and at the same time protect the wages of the laborer; La Follette, in his platform, asks for the same thing. Will somebody explain by what process of legerdemain such a condition can be made.

Racine Journal: Milwaukee handled 28,559,949 bushels of grain last fiscal year, according to the annual report of the chamber of commerce. With a better cooperation of her railroads it is claimed the receipts would be larger. The freight handled in both directions at the port for last year was 5,071,763 as against 3,594,122 the previous year.

Fond du Lac Commonwealth: Judging from the amount of attention being given Chief Baker's affidavit relative to the gymnasium convention that document must have been a bulgey shot. What the public wants is the facts about that convention and Baker's affidavit was entirely too full of them to suit the third-termers. It will keep them all fall trying to explain that one document.

Oshkosh Northwestern: The Liden Southwest Wisconsin comes to the conclusion that after all, "from an examination of the record we believe Mr. La Follette to be a mere blunderer in the field of tax reform." Now this is real unkind after the exhibition given by the governor that he is willing to reverse his judgment, as he has apparently done, concerning the merits of the present mortgage tax law.

Atlantic Monthly: We live—to sum up the situation—in a generation that has gone recreation-mad. Outdoor sports and indoor sports fill up our leisure moments, or in some cases, all our moments. Athletics, golf, tennis, games of all manners and lacking manners, rise, flourish and decay. The race horse, the bicycle, and the automobile pursue each other across the stages of action. We play at being intellectual, we play at being religious, we play at being "rough," and all three are merged and included in being men and women "of the world." The instrument of an occasional hilarity has an unfortunate tendency to develop into the mindster to a quenchless thirst.

Evening Wisconsin: When looking about for substitutes for meat, housewives will do well to consider the capabilities of oatmeal. Let them boil it well. The trouble with grain foods is that they are often insufficiently boiled. The soldiers of Bruce were satisfied with moistening their oatmeal as they crossed the ford and devouring it raw, but Scotchmen have always had stomachs of iron. Moreover, the soldiers of Bruce passed all of their time out of doors, and that sort of life enables people to digest what would distress those who spend most of their hours under a roof. The more thoroughly oatmeal and rice and cornmeal are predigested by boiling the easier is the task of assimilating them when they are taken into the human system.

SUES HUBBY FOR MANY HUNDRED

ALLEGED TO HAVE BEEN IN-TRUSTED WITH HIM

AT TIME OF HER WEDDING

Mrs. Elizabeth Trescher of Milton, is Plaintiff in Singular Action—No Threats of Divorce.

Elizabeth Trescher of the town of Milton and Joseph, her husband, sat in either corner of the visitors' section of the municipal court room this morning and tunneled the ten yards of intervening space with a spirited conversation. Mrs. Trescher is suing her lord and master for four or five hundred dollars.

No Talk of Divorce

Singularly enough there were no threats of divorce proceedings or anything of that sort. Mrs. Trescher claims the right to possession of money which she claims to have placed in the hands of her second husband for safe keeping at the time of their marriage. She wants this money now to bestow upon a son who was recently wedded. Mr. Trescher stands pat and says that the money is his and he is going to keep it. Agreeing sufficiently on all other questions of importance but finding themselves at variance on this single matter they have wisely decided to isolate it and let the court decide. In the meantime a brisk and never-ending argument between them goes merrily on.

SUGAR BEETS ARE LOOKING FINE

A Good Yield Is Promised If the Present Weather Continues.

All through Rock County the sugar beet crop is in fine condition. One gentleman interested in the culture recently drove through the county and reports every thing favorable.

Although the dry weather has not injured the beet crop any, still a good rain would be of much benefit to the late planted beets and those that were planted on sandy soil. The greater advantage of the dry weather and have their fields well cleaned of grass and weeds.

Boys and girls in large numbers are applying for work in the sugar beet fields in Dane and Rock counties. This help question was bothering a number of growers early in the season, but there was not the least bit of trouble and many were surprised how cheaply they got along with the work that was necessary. The reports from the surrounding territory are very favorable in some localities. They have had more rain than we have had here. Generally speaking, the crop at the present time is making good headway and will be a very satisfactory one, both to the growers and the factories.

Sugar beets often grow to an extraordinary size. Large numbers of them are a foot long and a half foot in diameter. The beets are pulled by a beet digger, a machine supplied to each farmer by the beet sugar factory to which he takes his crop. This digger lifts the beets out of the ground. Then the beet raiser usually sends a number of boys through the rows to gather them in piles.

Another crew follows to cut off the tops. This done they throw the beets into piles, spreading the leaves over them to prevent them from thawing. Freezing alone does not injure them, but both freezing and thawing damages them beyond further use, since it takes the sugar out. At about the first of December, usually, the farmers haul the beets to the factories to be manufactured into sugar. The pulp of the beets is sent back to the farmers to be used for fodder. The leaves of the beets are also used as food for the cows.

THIRTY-EIGHT ON THE MUSTER ROLL

Work of Organizing a Military Company Here Is Progressing Favorably—Meeting Friday.

Monday night a number of those interested in forming a military company in Janesville met in the G. A. R. hall and discussed ways and means for forming a permanent organization. Thirty-five young men were present and everyone was very enthusiastic over the bright prospects for a good company. The boys have been assured of the hearty support and good will of a large number of prominent men in business and professional circles here. An option has been secured upon one of the best halls in town in which to drill and the promise of sufficient financial backing to guarantee the success of the venture has already been secured. The muster roll of the new company now consists of the names of thirty-eight recruits and as soon as the necessary to form a new company, have been secured, the permanent organization will be effected and officers of the company elected. A meeting for this purpose will be held on Friday evening and a cordial invitation to be present is extended to every young man in the city who would like to join the company.

BIG CANAL WILL DO GREAT GOOD

EVANSVILLE MARSH IS TO BE DRAINED ENTIRELY.

IT IS A BIG UNDERTAKING

Work Will Be Begun This Fall—Preliminary Survey Now Completed.

Surveyors have made a careful survey of the tracts of land lying in what is termed the Evansville marsh, recently, and preparations are being made to begin work shortly upon the great drainage ditch which will make sixty-six hundred and eighty acres, now what is called marsh lands, dry and arable and the most valuable in the county. The lands referred to lie in the towns of Janesville, Center, Porter, Union and Magnolia.

Plans and Specifications have been prepared for a series of ditches which will drain this vast area. The ditches are eleven and one-half miles in length and the surveyor who has made the investigation claims there is a sufficient fall to guarantee that all the surplus water will be carried off and that the land will be drained. It is declared the whole matter practical and work will shortly begin. Preliminary work such as abstracts and figuring the assessment is being rushed and as soon as completed field operations will begin.

Former Enthusiastic

The sentiment of the farmers as a whole is largely in favor of the project. Nothing has thus far been discovered that will interfere with the work when once begun and reports which have been circulated to the contrary are denied by men who are interested in the project. The greater portion of the land to be benefited by the ditch is very fertile and raises large crops whenever it is possible to get a crop in. With the ditch to take away the surplus and unnecessary water there is no reason why this area should not be the richest crop producing district in the county.

Through Legal Means

The last attempt to dig a ditch was abandoned several years ago because of the legal complications involved. There were several flaws in the papers which constituted the order for the work and these could not be remedied in time to finish the project.

WATCH OUT FOR CLEVER STRANGER

Many Crooks Always Follow Big Shows—Lock Your Doors and Windows Carefully.

Tomorrow is circus day. This should be enough warning to everyone to leave their houses securely locked if they go downtown to witness the parade, and to be sure and lock it in the evening if they purpose going to the circus and also to be sure to lock up securely before going to bed. Janesville has been visited by too many petty thieves this past summer to give them any more opportunity to ply their trade. Everyone remembers the number of petty thefts that took place when the Ringling show was here a little over a month ago and while the management of the Barium & Bailey show are most careful still they cannot always look out for every hanker-on of such a large show as they carry. The city police will be busy keeping the crowds in order and watching for pickpockets. If you discover a loss or see anyone trying to rob someone else notify the police. Do this at once and do not delay and give the thief time to escape into the circus grounds or elsewhere. Last circus day a lady lost her pocketbook in the crowd. A relative who lives in the city recognized a well-known crook in the crowd and went to him and told him to give the pocket-book back. The pocket-book was returned. Of course everyone is not as fortunate but it shows what can be done. The Barium show carries with it a large number of performers, mountabouts and others. Following every circus are any number of crooks from the cities. They ply their trade during the morning parade, working the crowds and doing the private residences. In the afternoon they pick out quiet streets and get the lay of the land for evening operations. If successful they jump ahead of the show a couple of towns and wait for it to catch up. They are in no way associated with the show but follow it. These are the men to watch out for. Usually the detective with the show knows them by sight and it should be his duty and the duty of the local officers to see that they are locked up until the show leaves town.

SPECIAL WARNING TO HOUSEHOLDERS

Chief Hogan Issues a Warning to Keep Doors Locked Tomorrow.

To the Public:

Tomorrow is circus day and special care should be given by every household to their doors and windows are securely locked if they go out during the day or evening. If you discover a theft telephone the city lock-up immediately. An officer will be stationed there to care for telephone calls all day. JOHN HOGAN, City Marshal.

GRAND BAND FOR THE STATE FAIR

Filipino Band Has Been Hired to Give Four Concerts the Opening Days.

Visitors to the Wisconsin state fair in September will hear the great Filipino Constabulary band, which is one of the big attractions at the St. Louis exposition.

The board of state fair managers have closed a contract with the Filipinos to play at the fair on Sept. 5 and 6. The engagement was made through Theodore Thomas, leader of the Chicago orchestra. Four band concerts will be given by the musicians from the islands one each afternoon and evening of the first two days of the fair.

The Milwaukee engagement will be the first time that the Constabulary band has played in the United States outside of St. Louis. It was only after great pressure was brought to bear upon the authorities that permission was granted to give concerts at the Wisconsin state fair. For the four concerts the state fair board will pay $2,500, which is a great reduction from the amount first asked by the manager of the band.

The Filipinos will arrive in Milwaukee on the morning of Sept. 5, which is military day at the fair. It is the intention of the state fair managers to have the musicians met at the depot by the state militia and escorted from their train to the grounds at North Greenfield. As the band will arrive on Labor day, it may take part in the big street parade, but so far no arrangements have been made with the committee in charge of the Labor day celebration.

The musicians from the Philippines were engaged through the efforts of the Milwaukee advisory committee. Several members of that committee heard the band at the St. Louis exposition and at once opened negotiations to engage it for the fair.

CORTELYOU PICKS CAMPAIGN HEADS

LOOKS TO DOUBTFUL STATES

Workers From New York and Indiana
Are Expected to Take Care of Votes and See That They Are Deposited for Party's Choice.

Chicago, Aug. 3.—The names of the men who will conduct the Republican national campaign were made public Tuesday evening. Chairman George B. Cortelyou finally selected them and made the announcement just before he left for the East. They form the executive committee of the national committee and the officers of the latter body. These officers are also ex officio officers of the executive committee. This list is:

Officers national committee—Chairman, George B. Cortelyou, New York; secretary, Elmer Dover, Ohio; treasurer, Cornelius N. Bliss, New York; sergeant-at-arms, William F. Stone, Maryland.

Executive committee, Eastern headquarters, New York—Charles F. Brooker, Connecticut; N. B. Scott, West Virginia; Franklin Murphy, New Jersey; William L. Ward, New York. Western headquarters, Chicago—Harry S. New, Indiana; Frank O. Lowden, Illinois; R. B. Schneider, Nebraska; David W. Mulvaney, Kansas.

Has Charge of Speakers.
James A. Tawney of Minnesota has been put in charge of the speakers' bureau for the Western headquarters. He will select the speakers for this territory and direct their energies.

Another person may be added to the Western division of the executive committee. If it is done it probably will be either Henry C. Payne of Wisconsin or the national committeeman from a far Western state, preferably Idaho or Colorado. There is a difficulty in naming the Wisconsin member, however, as to do this would give recognition to one of the two factions in that state, Mr. Payne being a Spooner man, and the national committee desires to keep out of the trouble.

Honors to Doubtful States.

In the main the executive committee is made up of men from what are generally regarded as doubtful states. New York is trebly represented. Not only is Mr. Ward, its national committeeman, on the executive committee, but Mr. Bliss is an officer by virtue of being treasurer of the main body. Chairman Cortelyou himself comes from New York. Brooker of Connecticut, Murphy of New Jersey and Scott of West Virginia were all selected on account of the contests expected in their states.

Mr. New of Indiana was put at the head of the western branch of the executive committee because his state is the one in the west in which the most active fight is looked for. Col. Lowden was chosen largely because the headquarters are located in Chicago and Illinois by right looked for representation. The appointment of Lowden also is expected to please the faction of the Illinois Republicans who were defeated in the recent state convention.

Fight in the East.

It was taken for granted that the makeup of the committee indicated that, in the opinion of Mr. Cortelyou, the main fight will be in the east. The fact that the easterners on it all come from states classed as doubtful was understood to indicate this. For the first time in the memory of men now active in politics, not in the history of the Republican party, Pennsylvania is not represented in the executive committee. Ohio, which in older days always had its committeemen, also is passed by, except that Mr. Dover is the secretary of the main committee, and as such is an officer of the body which will do the work.

While Mr. Cortelyou is in the east—and he expects to spend most of his time in New York or Washington—Secretary Dover and Mr. New will be in charge of the western headquarters.

LENT IN FLORENCE

MAD CARNIVAL USHERS IN THE HOLY SEASON.

Grand Ball the Last of the Permitted Gallies—Impressive Religious Services in the Great Duomo Immediately Follow.

(Special Correspondence.)

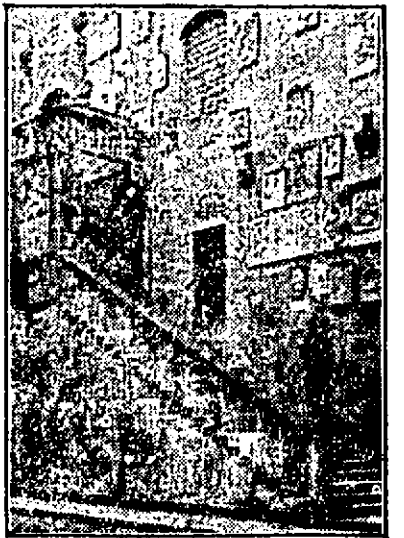

Carnival time in Florence was a run of gaiety, and charity worked itself off in the Red Cross ball, many weeks anticipated by the smart set.

An Italian ball is an unceasing affair, and bands in two galleries made constant music. The rooms grew congested and dusty as hundreds of couples bumped and stumbled on the felt, while chaparrones and dowagers flanked on the lovely tapestries, yawning behind their fans, and strove to be gracious. Every possible invention of gown appeared, as elegant parition rubbed shoulders with humble plebeian. Salvini's daughter, wife of a distinguished army officer, gave queenly effect to beautiful lace. The daughter of Bellinconi, Italy's famous cantatrice, swept along in white satin. There were gowns of jet and gowns of spangles. Two girlish creatures in short white dresses were declared by experienced men to be pronounced "cocottes." The lady in grass-green high to the throat, was quite in advance of the season, and the lady who danced in heavy black velvet was steeped in a prolonged vapor bath. The provincial Italian family was prominent. The fat father rolled along like an animated hoghead, studded with steel buttons, and hooped off with red cording. Mother and auntie bobbed in dusty, rusty velvet from a misfit shop, and the buxom twin daughters, in Japanese silk of pink and white, were precisely alike in every fold and wrinkle.

Never did a bacchanalian orgy know wilder dancing. The spinning-top turn, the rubber-ball bounce, the long slide and the short glide were all there. The fat and fluff-haired German tore madly down the lines, with his breathless partner clinging desperately to his arm. The wooden-jointed Englishman danced like a tipsy parson, shaking down his right side, then his left, but never by any chance dancing the whole of himself at once. He always had a reserve section of himself left over for the next turn. The dancers were a matter of mystification. Nobody knew anything about the figures, and each had a fixed and different notion of his own, and went off on his special canter. Every one bumped and tumbled his neighbor, got lost in his own act, and strayed off to another, till companies were decidedly mixed, and partners lost to sight. The evening was well worn away, when the orchestra swung out the startling notice, "Dancing." Curious people inquired if the previous efforts were only faking. To the Italian mind, the sign meant our "Military Schottische," or "Dancing in the Barn," a most popular dance with the people, who fell upon it violently, frisking through the steps, and savagely clanking for their partners at the turn. Little ladies were grabbed up bodily in the air, to land as best they could. Officers in brass and tin sent their sabers through precious frills of lace. Reckless ladies trailed their long gowns dangerously under their neighbors' feet, while careful women in their zeal lifted their dresses to the knee.

With carnival crisis past, a contrasting crowd gathers daily in the great Duomo. From all converging streets the people come, pouring through the bronze doors into the dim and vast interior, all gray and drab, all gloomy and somber, so that the stranger at first is stunned and lost in the vastness and the darkness. Closely packed are the chairs, and very patient the people, waiting quietly with upturned faces. Many are devoutly praying, and often the chairs are turned back, that the penitent may kneel to say the the crucifix, and the faithful murmur the prayer. He turns to his flock, and gently, softly says: "Signori." He has the rapt attention of every eye. For one hour, with logical thought, with lightning speech, with mighty gestures, he pours out the will of God, reveals the way of life, from an impassioned heart. Not a note does he read, not a second does he hesitate. The hour is quite too short for the message he would utter. With startling power he hurls the weighty words. With fiery earnestness he pleads his cause. With gentle tenderness and wonderful love he exhorts his people. He reaches an ecstasy of passion. The stored-up energy of an electric battery flashes through his sermon. There is dramatic action in every sentence. His being vibrates with vigorous intensity. Head, hands, arms, accent his meaning. He tosses back the long brown sleeves, regardless of the gray flannel beneath. The great gun fires twelve, but Friar Theodolfo heeds it not. When at last he stops, a rustle of delight, a hum of joy runs like a gentle wave through the Duomo. "bravo! bravissimo! bene, va bene! splendido!" burst from many an overflowing heart. He descends the steps and enters the closed chair, while the men in straps hear him through the church, followed by the pressing throngs, across the piazza, over the tramways, to the priests' rooms opposite, while the great bell of the Campanile, Giotto's glorious tower, rings long and loud that service is over, and midday has come. We rub our eyes and ask if we have dreamed of medieval Florence, as the fiery sermon suggests the monk of San Marco, the stern padre who was prophet of evil, who held his frightened flock in the packed Duomo through hours of bitter cold.

VICTIM OF SULTAN'S PERFDY.

Midhat Pasha Died Because Turkish Ruler Feared Him.

A recently published biography of Midhat Pasha, formerly a power in Turkey, tells how he, as leader of a reform party, brought about the deposition of Sultan Abdul Aziz. Prince Murad then was proclaimed sultan. Five days later the ex-sultan committed suicide, a fact which was proved by nineteen doctors. Ten days after this tragedy Sultan Murad became insane and was deposed and Abdul Hamid, the present sultan, ascended the throne. Midhat was banished, but was received with so much favor in Europe that the sultan became nervous and recalled him and appointed him governor of Syria. Here he did much good, but found himself called upon to resign in 1890. He next became governor-general of Smyrna, but shortly afterward he was arrested with Mehmet Rashed Pasha and others on a charge of being concerned in the murder of Abdul Aziz. The trial dragged on for months and Midhat, with others, was condemned to death, but on intervention of the English government his sentence was changed to imprisonment for life. Midhat was sent to Taif, in Arabia, where many attempts were made to poison him, which were frustrated by his servant. One night, however, he was dragged from his room by some of the sultan's officials and strangled.

Experiment Unsuccessful. The immense success of the share-grown tobacco in Connecticut and elsewhere induced experimenters to apply the same principle to the growing of garden vegetables in the hope of securing better results. In this, however, they have been disappointed, as numerous test plants protected by cheesecloth inclosures failed to show any advantage over similar truck grown in the open. It is asserted that practically the only benefit has been in securing tenderer vegetables, though the yield is not as great, and the individual specimens do not attain as large an average size.

heads. Still they come, thronging the great space, crowding below the pulpit, packing solidly to the aisle, and little children are wedged under the arches of the pulpit. Surely something thrilling is in store, to hold such patient numbers a long hour in the cold, dark church. The bells sound 11, as a stir runs through the crowd, and all eyes turn to the side entrance, where two men attached by leather straps are bringing a closed chair. They drop it at the pulpit steps, and a strong and sturdy man steps out. He is a Franciscan friar, a brown-robed brother, with knotted cord and sandals. His large round face is frank and kindly, and loving eyes look through the gold-rimmed spectacles. His fringe of hair falls below the tiny skull cap. Possibly he is forty years of age. The church is hushed in silence as he makes the mystic sign, then folds his hands in prayer. The congested throng tries to kneel, as he gives the blessing. He turns and prays before

PRIEST SCORES THE CATHOLICS

MUST FIGHT FOR THE LORD

Legal Separation and Secular Education Are Held to Be Opposed to the Laws of God—Wants Change Through Ballot Box.

Detroit, Aug. 3.—"The number of Roman Catholics in this country is 12,000,000, yet we have less influence than some of the weaker sects. Why have we Roman Catholics so little influence, despite the fact that we number 2,000,000 voters? It is because of our cowardice in expressing opinions. We are afraid to open our mouths in defense of the church and her doctrines because we are on the unpopular side. You must advance your ideas; you must fight—but not, thank God, with deadly weapons. The object of your convention is a high and noble one. You must lay down a fighting program for the future and carry it out."

In this manner Rev. Patrick O'Brien of Toledo urged the members of the American Federation of Catholic Societies to greater activity, in a sermon to the delegates to the fourth convention, which began here Tuesday. Three hundred delegates were present and listened intently.

Condemns Divorce Law.

"The church cannot sanction the law of divorce because it is against the law of God," he said. "The state has no right to enact the law of divorce. I say it as a citizen loyal to the government. The church cannot sanction the present public school system of the country because it eliminates religion from the teachings. I know it is an unpopular stand, but we must make it because we are right and the state is wrong. Our non-Catholic brethren look upon us with prejudiced eyes and imagine there is something in the teachings of the church that weakens our loyalty. I defy any man to impugn the loyalty of Roman Catholics."

Secretary Matre's annual report showed a total membership of 1,500,000 in the organization affiliated with the federation. The following cablegram from Pope Pius X. was read: "Pius has received the filial greetings of the American Federation of Catholic Societies and sends his apostolic blessing."

IMPORTANT!

Good News About Amazon Gold Mining Co. Properties.

Good news about the Amazon mining properties of Durango, Mexico, notice of which appeared last Saturday, has just been received. A new 60 ton smelter has been purchased and is now on the ground. This in addition to the two 12 ton smelters which are already in operation, will give a big capacity.

A $620000 matt from the property is, on its way to the refinery at Denver, Colorado, and another, valued at $35000, is at the smelters ready to ship. Dividends of 1 per cent. per month on the par value of stock will be declared in thirty days, which will be 48 per cent. on the investment per annum. We are confident the dividend will reach 100 per cent. before a 12 month.

This is one of the greatest properties discovered in Mexico and it certainly has a brilliant future. The price of 25 cents per share will remain for the next ten days, at which time the price per share goes to $2.00.

The above statement is received from the fiscal agents for this unique and wonderful property.

IN POLITICS ONCE MORE.

Ex-Lieutenant Governor William F. Sheehan Returns to Old Field.

The name of William F. Sheehan has appeared frequently in the past few weeks in connection with the nomination of Judge Alton B. Parker for president and the coming national canvass of the Democracy. For a half dozen years few names appeared more often in public print than that of Mr. Sheehan. As assemblyman, speaker of the assembly, lieutenant governor and an aggressive leader of his party in the state of New York, Mr. Sheehan in those days was constantly in temut governor of New York. In a political sense, came about through changed political conditions and the fact that he was a close friend of Judge Parker. As the sage of Esopus began to loom large on the political horizon Mr. Sheehan began to be heard about again. On his retirement from the lieutenant governorship in 1895 he removed from Buffalo to New York and entered upon the practice of his profession as a lawyer there, announcing that he was "out of politics." But politics is a game whose fascinations, once known, are hard ever after to resist. Mr. Sheehan made money in the practice of law, became attorney for large corporations and identified himself with leading metropolitan financiers, including August Belmont. Though inactive during Mr. Bryan's leadership he now finds himself once more in sympathy with his party, and as Judge Parker reposes much confidence in his political judgment he is likely to be consulted a good deal in regard to the direction of the canvass.

Mr. Sheehan was born forty-five years ago in Buffalo and as a boy sold papers for a living. He attended the public schools and St. Joseph's college, read law, was admitted to the bar at twenty-two and two years later was elected to the assembly of the state. In 1891 he was made speaker of the assembly and a year later became lieutenant governor, serving until the close of his term in 1895. Mr. Sheehan is a neighbor of Judge Parker, occupying a house at Esopus not far from Rosemount.
